From inspiration of my favorite painting, this website I want to make a simple and relaxing site inspired by Vincent van Gogh's painting, "Starry Night." The idea is to create a calm and peaceful place online where people can take a break and unwind. The website will let users choose how they want to relax, like listening to music, ASMR, or trying yoga or meditation.

The website will have a "Starry Night" theme with soft colors and swirling stars to make it feel peaceful. It will be a place where users can pick what helps them relax. They could listen to music, calming ASMR sounds, or follow a simple yoga or meditation session. The goal is to make it easy for anyone to find a way to feel calm.

For the design it will be similar to the "Starry Night" painting, with lots of blue and yellow tones. The background will have a starry sky that moves a little to make it more interesting. The text will be easy to read and all a cohesive font. There will be separate sections for music, ASMR, and yoga/meditation, all easy to find. For the animation I want to try and make the stars glow so it keeps beaming its light, as well as adding a glow to buttons that your mouse hovers over to show what you're choosing. As for interactions,

The website will have different ways for users to interact such as:

- Music Section: Users can click to play songs that feel dreamy and relaxing. There will be a list of songs to pick from.

- ASMR Section: There will be a playlist of soft, calming sounds, like whispers or nature noises, and tapping that users can play.
- Yoga/Meditation Section: This will also include a playlist of methods to meditate and different yoga moves

In conclusion, this website will be a calm, easy-to-use space where people can take a break and enjoy different ways to relax. It's inspired by the beautiful painting of "Starry Night" as it's my favorite and this site is designed to help people feel at peace.
